flow is multifarious and does not preclude an abundant diversity of states of consciousness. As the flow unravels, it carries all the indestructible past that is present to the novel present that unrolls.

The Stream of Consciousness and the Epochal Theory of Time

A Theory of Consciousness Giorgio Marchetti University of Urbino According to William James's theory of mind (1890), our conscious mental life flows continuously like a stream in which "the transition between the thought of one object and the thought of another is no more a break in the thought than a joint in a bamboo is a break in the wood" (James, 1983, pp. 233-234). For this reason ...
