Clans and Chieftains (in Ireland) The use of the word 'The' as a prefix to a surname to indicate that the user is the head or chief of a sept comprising the bearers of that name is a comparatively modern practice, but the existence of the chieftainries so denoted makes an examination of its historical background essential. To understand this one must glance back to the early mediaeval period ...

The Maguire Chieftains The Maguires came to power under their chieftain Donn Maguire who died about 1302AD. The original Maguire stronghold was at Knockninny. Donn's son, Auley, from whom the territory of Clanawley descends, extended the Maguire protectorate to Lisnaskea where the Maguire inauguration seat was established on the site of an ancient mound. By 1395, Philip of the Battle Axe had ...
