The Mermaids Singing (Tony Hill and Carol Jordan Series #1

I have heard the mermaids singing, each to each. I do not think that they will sing to me. I have seen them riding seaward on the waves. Combing the white hair of the waves blown back. When the wind blows the water white and black. We have lingered in the chambers of the sea. By sea-girls wreathed with seaweed red and brown. Till human voices wake us, and we drown. The Mermaids Singing is my second foray into Val McDermid's work; my first was one of her standalone novels but The Mermaids Singing is the first in her Tony Hill/Carol Jordan series, on which ITV's Wire In The Blood is based. I've never seen Wire In The Blood, so came to this book with no real preconceptions about what to expect.

She imagined they'd give each other a last glance at the end, a bit of curiosity, and then they would go their separate ways. Off in opposite directions. Off in opposite directions. But the helicopter landed, and Ava and Kyoko stepped off, and Kyoko listened to Ava thank the pilot in a soft voice, smiling a sweet, shy smile, and then they walked away from the landing pad.
